CDG
CAROLINA-DUKE GRADUATE PROGRAM IN GERMAN STUDIES

TWO UNIVERSITIES, ONE DOCTORAL PROGRAM

The Carolina-Duke Graduate Program in German Studies combines the resources of two great universities in a curriculum that joins disciplinary rigor with interdisciplinary flexibility to create an internationally acclaimed center of excellence for graduate training, research, teaching, and scholarly exchange.
A PH.D. PROGRAM IN GERMAN LITERATURE, MEDIA, AND THEORY

One of the leading programs and largest faculties in German Studies in North America, the Carolina-Duke Graduate Program builds our vibrant intellectual community around three core commitments:

Texts: we emphasize the careful interpretation of literature, film, and other media and discourses.

Theories and Methods: we offer deep engagement with methodologies such as literary theory, philosophy, intellectual history, and science studies, as well as affiliations across the disciplines with Jewish Studies; Literature Departments; History; Music; Philosophy; Divinity; Art History; Political Science; Gender, Sexuality, and Feminist Studies; and the Center for Philosophy, Arts, and Literature.

Historical Depth: we anchor intellectual development within knowledge of German-language literature and culture from the medieval to contemporary periods.

Through close collaboration with faculty advisors, each student develops their individual research agenda while receiving pre-professional guidance and mentored pedagogical training at both an elite private university and a top public university.

GRADUATE FUNDING

All students who matriculate to the Carolina-Duke Program in German Studies receive funding that covers tuition and health insurance and provides a stipend for six consecutive years. See website for details.
The Graduate Program seeks ADMISSIONS. To apply to the Graduate Program, visit: gradschool.unc.edu/admissions/

The faculty offers seminars at Chapel Hill and Durham, which occupy the western half of central North Carolina's Research Triangle. Home to roughly two million residents, the Triangle is a growing cosmopolitan hub for education and research, culture and sports, business and government. Historically and culturally rich, Chapel Hill (as well as Carrboro to the west) and Durham have been repeatedly lauded as university towns that take pride in their diversity and openness. Both cities are thriving with venues for live music, theater, the performing and the visual arts, and both enjoy a nationally renowned food scene.

COURSE OF STUDY

TWO UNIVERSITIES
Incoming students matriculate fully at both the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and Duke University. Classes are offered every semester on both campuses and students travel via an express bus that departs every half hour. Over the course of the program, students will acquire teaching experience in a private (Duke University) and a public (University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill) setting.

REQUIREMENTS OF STUDY
The faculty offers seminars at the leading edge of research in the field, designed to provide students with a deep grounding in German Studies and to prepare them for their own innovative dissertation research.

During the first two years, students complete five core seminars: Foreign Language Pedagogy (Theories and Practice); Foundations in German Studies I (1000-1700); Foundations in German Studies II (1750 - 1900); Foundations in German Studies III (1900 - present); and German Linguistics.

Students take seven electives in the program and two additional interdisciplinary courses outside the program. Prior to the dissertation, students will take a preliminary exam, and an oral defense is required upon submitting the dissertation. Both UNC-Chapel Hill and Duke University offer graduate students ample study and research opportunities in Berlin, Potsdam and Tübingen.

THE DEGREE & THE PROFESSION
Students graduate with a diploma bearing the names of both Duke University and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The faculty’s students have secured jobs in German Studies at both public and private colleges and universities big and small throughout the United States.
CDG is located in North Carolina’s Research Triangle. The city of Durham, home to Duke, is 10 miles from UNC-Chapel Hill. The Robertson Express Bus connects Duke and UNC every thirty minutes. Raleigh-Durham International Airport is a convenient hub for domestic and international flights with daily flights to Europe.
